WE CELEBRATE.

The immortal spirit of C. Columbus, Esq., navigator and discoverer, must have been proud indeed when it gazed down upon the great démonstrations in New York last week in the Star Spangled Banner and other glorious things. Had Columbus kept pace with the times he certainly did what thousands of us poor mortals did—celebrated. But three days of such wonderful parades, pag fireworks and general jollification, must have caused the old gentleman's head to swim, and if he is still afflicted with the weaknesses of mankind, he is suffering from an enlargement of the cranium. But we have Columbus hats to fit any head. Columbus beer, Columbus cocktails and other soul-inspiring concoctions guaranteed to warm the spirit of an iceberg, all of which we respectfully recommend to the great discoverer.

It was a great gala week for Gotham. Over one million visitors came here to see a celebration such as only New York can give. No other city in the world could have furnished pleasure seekers with such wonderful sights and such keen enjoyment. The military parade was the biggest ever seen, the pageant the most beautiful, the fireworks the grandest, the police the finest and the city itself the most glorious on earth. What more could the visitors ask for or even dream of? Nothing. They were bewildered by the brilliant colored decorations, amazed at the crowds that blocked the streets, simply paralyzed by the mammoth parades and pageants, speechless over the grand pyrotechnic displays and completely knocked silly by the pretty girls of Gotham.

We did ourselves proud. Hurrah for Colum-

BALLERINAS AND BEAUTIES.

I'm afraid Columbus, a gentleman very much in fashiou just now, would have been mightily shocked at the antics of the devilish and decollete dancers, at present so chipper and forward in the metropolis. They gyrate, cavort, distort, pirouette, toe, taper, tittilate in the most abandoned and unchecked way . Paris and London used to have the monopoly of naughty merriment. New York is coming pretty close to having a monop-

Manager Mart Hanley, of Harrigan's, recently returned from Europe, brought back with him several of these famous birds of English breed, such as Shakespeare once wrote of. They were intended for "Squatter Sovereignty;" and a curious fact about these roosters (as they are generally called in America) is that, like human beings, they are more or less the creatures of habit; and as Ireland sees the sun rise six hours earlier than it rises in America, the Irish birds, true to the land of their nativity, begin to crow several hours earlier than the time they are required to make themselves heard in "Squatter Sovereignty." By-and-bye, howand so they "give away the cue." ever, they will get used to New York time, and crow when they ought to. Hanley says he saw some of the original stock in Temple Moore.

Shun danger, and fly! Augustin Daly is playing Rehan in "Little Miss Million," a comedy adapted from Blumenthal. It's light in texture, but well acted. Adelaide Prince is a beauty; Jimmy Lewis isn't, but he's clever. Arthur Bourchier, the new leading man, is a good actor. I don't see why a manager of Daly's brains casts Miss Rehan for parts requiring schoolgirlish invenility. Miss Rehan now has a pair of arms like a lady at the Halles de Paris, and she doesn't look or act the school miss a little bit. That part could be played by Isabella Irving or Percy Haswell. I was sitting at the supper table with my colleagues, after the performance, when a burly and coarse-looking man entered, and in loud and impudent tones asked to speak to me. "I dare say he will do it, though," said Theodore;

At that moment they turned a sharp corner, and came in sight of a small, tumble-down house standing in the midst of a wretched little plot of worn and trampled grass, just in front of which was displayed a huge board with the inscription, "Beware the dog."

Hood looked warily around him in all directions, and, finding no dog anywhere visible, picked up a broken piece of brick and scribbled underneath the warning, "Ware be the dog?"

M. F. Boyd, Tax Receiver of Floyd County, Ga., recently fatally stabbed Walker Mitchell, another prominent citizen. Mitchell and Mrs. Boyd were caught in bed in the Tax Receiver's room, as the result of a trap set by Boyd, who suspected them.

Boyd told his wife he was going away, but shortly after noon he returned home. He is a cripple and rolls himself about in a chair. He told his negro assistant to roll his chair into the room and then retire and lock the door. This was done, and Boyd quietly rolled his chair to the bed and with a keen pocketknife stabbed Mitchell many times before either he or Mrs. Boyd awoke. They were both intoxicated with Maggie Purvis, a woman of notorious character, was standing in front of Bud Wright's saloon, in Craigs, a mall place about four miles from Owingville, Ky. talking to Henry Tincher, keeper of the County Poor House, when Lizzie Thompson, a former inmate of the institution, stepped up to the two and demanded that Tincher go with her. She repeated her request twice and receiving no answer, drew a revolver and shot the Purvis woman through the breast, making a wound from which she died some hours later. The murderess was arrested. She is about eighteen years of age and handsome. Her downfall occurred some two years since.

MURDERED BY BURGLARS.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.] At Sublette, Mo., one afternoon recently, Josie Simmons, a girl of 18, was murdered by thieves. Her mother had gone to St. Louis early in the day, and, returning about 5 P. M., found her daughter lying on the floor of the front room of the house with her throat cut from ear to ear. The house had been literally torn inside out by the criminals, who, to conceal their thefts or a worse crime, murdered the only member of the family at home. Six detectives were detailed on the case.

DEATH RATHER THAN DIVORCE

HE usually quiet lit-tle hamlet of Beth-any, W. Va., was thrown into great excitement on the night of Oct. 8 by an unexpected incident. The facts in the case are sub stautially as foilows: A member of one of the fraterni ties, having transgressed one of those unwritten laws among college stu-dents, brought on himself the penalty of a nocturnal stroll of about five miles over the hills and through the valleys, concluded with a cold dip in the treacherous Buffalo, a stream flowing near

About midnight on the above date one of the young ladies, being awakened by the shouting of some stn dents in the town and supposing that her brother was being kangarooed, roused as many of her sisters as she could by pounding on their doors. In an instant her cries and frantic pounding were answered by the occupants, who poured forth pell-mell in every kind of "decollete." With streaming robes and flying bair they rushed down the hill to the rescue from their dormitories to the supposed scene of action, which their leader concluded was on the creek bank. In their wild rush one of the Amazons fell over a pile of brush, knocking the breath out of her. This accident brought a halt to the charge. By this time the male population was aroused from its sleep. The appearance of the boys caused the young ladies, who had discovered their mistake, to scatter, one party carrying off the wounded sister. Around corners and up alleys they beat a hasty retreat, and not a few hours had elapsed before those sad but wiser sisters were again in their downy couches. The display of nature was not to be excelled by the French stage, so say those who were present.

Once started on the downward path, she fell rapidly. A pretty Southern girl, known to the midnight world as Alice Thorndike, died in Charity Hospital recently, the victim of dissipation. Her father, a Norfolk, Va., millionaire, found her body in a rough pine coffin at Hart's Island in time to save it from a pauper's grave. He had been searching the country over for his lost child, and, assisted by Detective James Fuller, of this city, found her when it was too late. Just two years ago Alice, the only daughter of the wealthy doctor and patent medicine inventor, resided with her father. She was his only remaining child and family solace in their mansion not far from Norfolk. Alice was then but twenty years of age, with large, dark, lustrous eyes, a finely moulded form and well educated. She was much sought after by young men of high social standing.

One day she disappeared. Upon inquiry it was learned that she had been seen on the evening of her disappearance in company with another young woman strange gentleman hurrying toward Norfolk. The doctor was convinced that she had purposely fled from home to the North.

Several weeks rolled by, still not a word had the anxious doctor learned or heard of his daughter's whereabouts. The police of all the Northern cities were notified to keep a lookout for the missing one, and most appealing "personals" and advertisements were put in the leading newspapers begging Alice to of her existence," without any fruitful result,

A few months ago the doctor was surprised to learn from a young Virginia business man that he had met and positively recognized the doctor's daughter in an aristocratic boarding house in West Thirty-sixth street, near Sixth avenue, New York city. Upon this information the doctor at once sent a communication to the Fuller Detective Bureau.

Chief Fuller, with the description of the doctor's daughter and the name "Alice Thorndike," personally started out on his mission. The investigation resulted in tracing the girl from the very time she left her home, when it appears she came to this city with a former schoolmate who induced the girl to become an inmate of a tawdry place in Thirtieth street, near Alice could not restrain her insatiable craving, and by degrees drifted from house to house, until at last she went to the Charity Hospital under another name and died.

Upon learning all these facts Chief Fuller telegraphed to her father. thirty years of age and came up from Redondo. As near as can be learned the unfortunate girl had a lover's quarrel. When questioned she refused to give the name of the man, but stated that she had refused to marry him when he proposed and the Lord became very angry with her, as he had selected the man for her, and in his wrath he ordered her to go to the colored people's house where she was captured, smash everything in the house and then take a run through the graveyard.

She evidently proceeded to carry out the instructions, and was successful in every particular, for when she reached the house the family happened to be away, and she had no trouble in effecting an entrance She demolished every piece of furniture in the house After running up and down several streets she made a bee line for the cemetery, and for quite a while ran up and down among the walks and skipped in and out among the graves.

Nashville, Tenn., society is expecting a duel between A. Vance Boren of Nashville, Tenn., and John P. Williams, vice-President of the First National Bank of Nashville. He is worth a half million dollars, and lives on North Vine street in a $100,000 house. Boren was until recently a drummer of Nashville, but he is now connected with the World's Fair of Chicago.

Though meager reports of the Nashville scandal have been published in all the papers in the past few days, the full facts had never come out, and the whole affair has been studiously suppressed by all the Nashville papers in consequence of Banker Williams's standing and influence. That a challenge is likely to pass between the men in a short time there are grounds for believing. MICHAEL F. SWEENEY'S BIG JUMP.

Michael F. Sweeney or the Xavier Athletic Club of New York, accomplished a phenomenal high jumping performance at Travis Island, New York, on October 8 beating the best record ever made for high jumping . in the world.

"When Sweeney and Herrick of the Manhattan Athletic Club, had each cleared 6 feet 2 inches and the bar had been raised to 6 feet 41/4 inches, the knowing ones shook their heads and said it could not be. W. Byrd Page s record had withstood the attempts of all the great jumpers. Even old 'Father Bill' Curtis said, 'No, they can't do it.' Herrick tried three times and failed. Champion Sweener, in his thin athletic costume, with the cherry X standing out defiantly on his breast then walked over to take his turn. Confidently and lightly he sprang over the ground and 3,000 pairs of eyes watched him lesp. There was a sigh of disappointment as the Xavier boy's leg struck the bar and it fell. His attempt was a failure.

"Disappointed but not disheartened, the stronglimbed and ambitious Sweeney returned to try again. This time he eyed the bar critically for two minutes, Then, having gauged the height accurately, he walked slowly forward, gradually increasing his pace until it had developed into a run. "Now he was within five feet of it, and springing from the ground as lightly as a panther he leaped into the air and over the bar without disturbing it. He had accomplished the ambition of his life and eclipsed the efforts of W. B. Page, the greatest jumper of his time. Wild cheering greeted the wonderful feat. The ladica waved their handkerchiefs vicoronaly and screamed almost as loudly as their escorts. Hats and canes were thrown in the air and the band played, 'See, the Conquering Hero Comes.' Oh, what enthusiasm! Sweeney was the hero and the crowd paid its homage to him."

A WEEK OF FESTIVITIES

Parades, Pageants, Fireworks and Jollifications.

OVER A MILLION VISITORS.

Nothing Like It Ever Seen in Gotham Before,

PRETTY GIRLS ON REVIEW.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

The past week will be a memorable one for New Torkers. It will pass into history as the greatest gala week of the nineteenth century.

It was the 400th auniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus, and New York simply outdid herself in honor of the event.

There were parades, pageants, banquets and fireworks, and over 1,000,000 strangers in town. There were visiting militiamen and civic organizations from the various neighboring States, and war vessels from foreign countries. The spirit of Columbus must have been proud indeed.

The patriotic citizens of New York, Brooklyn and Jersey City decorated their business and private buildings with bunting and flags, and the streets were gay with bright colors and happy, smiling faces.

The celebration began on October 10 with a grand display of fireworks on the Brooklyn Bridge. Thousands of visitors crowded the wharves and roofs of buildings in the vicinity of the river. Invitations were issued by Richard K. Fox, and provisions made to accommodate several hundred sightseers on the roof of the gaily decorated POLICE GAZETTE building. A good view of the bridge and fireworks was obtained here. Among those who availed themselves of Mr. Fox's hospitality were:

Christopher Clarke, Manager Police Gazette, and saughter; Mr. George Bartholomew, Editor Daily News, and lady; P. Sewrot, of L. I. R'y staff; S. G. Patterson, of Snow, Church & Company; F. H. The river was crowded with steamboats and yachts, and all traffic on the ferries was stopped during the display of fireworks. Bombs and rockets burst in the air and search lights illuminated the bay and river. The fiery Niagara was the feature of the evening, and the steam whistles along the river tooted a great encore after it was over. On the same day there was a parade of 25,000 school children. With thousands of young Americans marching to patriotic strains, while thousands of proud parents and still other thousands looked on, with music and fireworks at night and enthusiasm everywhere, the metropolis welcomed all the world to its celebration in honor of the memory of the greatest of voyagers.

Rarely, if ever, in the history of the land which Columbus discovered has there been such a marching host of little ones, and never a more orderly or more

In the evening there was a parade of the Catholic societies and a Catholic celebration in Carnegie Hall. The United German societies also had a festival concert in the Seventh Regiment Armory Then there were more fireworks on the bridge. On this occasion the fireworks accidentally ignited, and Niagara Falls and the other pieces all went off at the same time, making the grandest display ever seen in this or any other country. It was a rather dangerous illumination, but fortunately no one was seriously

Wednesday, the 12th, however, was the day of days. The programme consisted of the grand military parade at 9 A. M.; the unveiling of the Columbus mor Eighth avenue and Fifty-ninth street, at 4 P. M., and a night pageant and illumination of the city.

Never has any American city, never, perhaps, has any European city, witnessed a grauder display than that which began in the metropolis early Wednesday morning and ended late at night.

It was a glorious and fitting close of a season of feativities which have eclipsed anything ever before seen in New York or attempted in any other quarter of the country.

The city was a bright-hued picture, radiant with decorations and gay colors, not merely in places, but everywhere. Never before has it been decked out so gorgeously or so universally. Nature herself joined in the joyous spirit of the eccasion, contributing an October sunshine lacking little of perfection and a night of rare beauty. Metropolis and people were given up to jubilee, business was laid aside, care driven away and daily pursuits dropped. Gladness and enthusiasm, order and good humor reigned everywhere among the countless thousands who celebrated the day as participants and spectators.

To say that the great military and civic parade was a magnificent success is to speak but mildly. Hour after hour the grand and varied column moved with the regularity of a drilled body, with nothing to mar its march. It was typical at once of the might of the nation and its care for the people. The National Guard represented that characteristically American mass which at an hour's notice may be transformed from citizens and business men into soldiers ready to maintain domestic order or resist foreign attack. The police stood for that element which preserves peace, makes our streets safe and guards our homes, while the firemen were emblematic of the vigilance shown for the protection of life and property.

While governmental power and care were thus typified by the great procession, peace and order were the most significant aspect of the great host of spectators. It is safe to say that so vast an outpouring of people was never more orderly, more good-natured, more enthusiastic or more joyous. The crowds and the enthusiasm were unprecedented, yet the spirit of harmony and good feeling prevailed everywhere. There were fully 50,000 men in line under the command of Gen. McMahon. First came the West Point Cadets, followed by the United States troops. Then came the militiamen for the several neighboring States. Gov. Pattison headed the Pennsylvania troops who wore picturesque uniforms, reminding the spectators of the western cowboy. The Connecticut militia was headed by Gov. Buckley, while Gov. Abbett rode at the head of the Jersey boys. Gov. Russell, of Massachusetts, the youngest State magistrate in the country, and his staff, were there, too. Then came the veteran firemen in their gay-colored uniforms. They made an imposing show. Veteran Harry Howard led the New York organization and was on to either side of the bridles. Then the horses were stopped, but the crowd was only twelve feet away and well nigh panic-stricken, too.

In a few minutes all was quiet again. The officers deserved all the good things said about them.

The grand pageant took place in the evening. Nearly 1,500,000 people saw it. Owing to delays it was nearly 2 o'clock in the morning before it was over. It was headed by bicycle riders, male and female. Gorgeous floats, illuminated by electric lights, were there. So were hundreds of pretty ballet girls in tights and on prancing steeds. Pretty girls in tiglits and artistic costumes also rode on the floats. It would be impossible to describe all the pretty things of the pageant. Sufficient to say it was grand!

It is not boasting to assert that the great pageant would not have been possible in any other city on the continent. When we consider the vast multitude of visitors that were transported safely and housed comfortably, the exceptional size of the procession and the unprecedented masses that poured out into the thoroughfares, and then note the general smoothness, regularity and success that characterized the display. it is apparent that the metropolis has not only eclipsed what would have been possible in any other American city, but has won a new glory for itself. Indeed, it may be doubted whether in grandeur, popular enthusiasm and significance the pageant has ever been surpassed in the Old World.

For this magnificent success praise is due the Committee of One Hundred, the municipal government and the police authorities. But the chief honor belongs to the people themselves—spectators as well as participants. It was the jubilant and national spirit that animated the people of all classes which has made this commemoration of Columbus so grand and glorious and one destined to hold a memorable prominence in the annals of the metropolis.

Saw the Fireworks.

From the New York Daily News. Among the many beautifully decorated buildings in this city, that of the Police Gazetle office, at Franklin Square, occupies the front rank. The color design is one that decorators should study. Everything is completely harmonious from pavement to roof. The gilded fox heads on each corner of the iron balconies of the building add greatly to its attractiveness. To the hundreds of thousands of people crossing the Bridge the sight is a magnificent one.

Richard K. Fox, who is in Europe, with his usual generosity, cabled instructions to issue a number of invitations to witness the Brooklyn Bridge fireworks from the roof of the building and the adjoining buildings he owns on Dover street October 11, and upward of fifteen hundred guests took advantage of the invitations. As the main building is the highest and most attractive of any on the water front, and within a few hundred feet of the New York tower of the bridge, the view was a magnificent one. Among those who accepted invitations and witnessed the great display from the buildings were; Mr. and Mrs. Amos J. Cum-Walsh, Col. T. C. Campbell, Mr. McKeon and Mr. Edward Carr of the American News Company, Capt. and Mrs. James Moorehead, Capt. Nickerson and Miss Mamie Fox, daughter of Mr. Fox. The decorations of the Police Gazette building were put up by Sullivan Bros., Decorators, 494 and 496 Fulton street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

A FATAL GLOVE FIGHT.

The glove contest in the Young Men's Athletic Club, in Memphis, Tenn., on Oct. 8, between Dick Nolan of Birmingham, Ala., and Jack Davis, the well-known boxer, ended fatally to Nolan.

Death was caused by concussion of the brain, and came twenty-four hours after Davis gave him the blow that sent him to the floor like a log. Nolan fought at 131 pounds and was a much stronger man than his opponent, who is now behind the bars charged with murder.

The result of the mill has created a great sensation in Memphis, for the athletic club is a rich organization, owning a seven-story club house, and the fight was the first professional one it had given. No publicity was given to the fight, but hundreds of prominent men and officials saw it. Mr. Williams, a big cotton buyer, was referee; Mike Conley, the Ithaca Giant, and Bob Lee, a prominent saloonist, were Davis's seconds. Lee was arrested but released on $2,500 bond. Others of the interested parties are getting under cover and there is a nervous feeling in the club for fear Judge Dibbose, who is severe on sports, may make some examples. Dr. Porter, the millionaire banker, president of the club, did not attend the fight.

DEATH ENDS HER DISGRACE

The Curtain Falls on a Sensational Divorce Suit.

BIRD'S" "DICKEY

An Unfaithful Wife's Ardent Love Letter in Court.

POISON SETTLES THE SUIT.

A sensational divorce suit which was instituted the other day in the Supreme Court, this city. came to an abrupt end by the death of the pretty defendant from poison. It is alleged she committed suicide.

The divorce was begun by William S. Andrews, an expert electrical engineer in the employ of the Edison Company, against his wife, Cora Mary Andrews. Audrews first met his wife through a personal in a morning paper. That was in November, 1885, and he married her the following February. She had been twice married before, and was divorced from the last one.

Andrews alleges that within a year of their marriage he found a letter addressed to "Will Wilson" in her writing, containing a portrait of herself in bathing costume, with a veil over part of her face. This letter. it is said, contained the most endearing expressions of love, and said: "I have shown enough of my face for you to kiss."

Andrews wrote her that he would never live with her again, but she wrote asking forgiveness, and they were reconciled, living together till 1889.

He was traveling in the West in the spring of 1889. She wrote him to meet her in Minneapolis. He was detained in Chicago. Then a friend sent him the fol-

"WEST HOTEL Minneapolis, Jan. 17, 1889. "My love, my own True Love: Another letter to-day, and such a letter; dearest, my heart beats so I can hardly breathe. Must I be so far away? It seems so queer for you to say you are afraid I will grow cold. These lovely moonlight nights, as I bid the moon good-night, I breathe a prayer for my true love that he may be safe from all temptation, and well and happy. Heaven forgive me, my dear, if it is a sin to love you. You almost scolded me in your letter. I never for one moment thought you were unkind to

"We owe her so much. I never dreamed you could be unkind to any one. * * * * I only ask, my love. that you be as true to me as I to you, love me as I love you, and only grow tired when I am tired, for 'As the Lord liveth, and as my soul liveth, I will never leave thee nor forsake thee.' * * *

"I shall sleep to-night with your dear letter held tight to my heart. Oh, that I could lay my head on your dear arm and feel your lips on mine. Will it ever be again? It must be! I dreamed of you last night. I was in some horrid trouble and you would not help me. I could feel your arms, but you would not help me. I woke up with my face all wet with tears. It was all that plum pudding, I know, for I know you would help me in any trouble. How proud I am of you. * * *

"That gentleman you called 'Worthless Frank' is more to me than my life. I love him so. I forget honor, duty, the whole world, and count all well lost if I have his love. * * * Good night, my lover, my husband, a long, fond kiss from lovingly yours, SIS." On the strength of this letter he began proceedings for a divorce in Chicago, but received a letter, of which the following is a portion, which brought about a reconciliation

"MY DEAR HUSBAND-Don't throw me away. I have nowhere to go, no one to care for me. What can I do? * * * Kneeling here, with my lips pressed to your kind face, I swear before heaven I will devote my life to repay you the sorrow you have suffered. I pray to you as I would to my God, forgive, forgive, and take me back. * * * Try to forgive me, try to feel kindly to your old Dickey Bird. * * *"

In the summer of 1890, he alleges, he discovered that she was too friendly with John H. Kohler at Long Branch. She went to Philadelphia, taking Mrs. Sophia M. Anderson as housekeeper, and lived at No. 1,832 North Twenty-seventh street, in that city.

On the strength of an affidavit made by Mrs. Auderson he has brought the present suit for divorce. Mrs. Anderson tells of what she saw between Mr. Kohier, a man called Sykes and Mrs. Andrews.

He received the following letter from her on June 27 last, but refused to forgive her.
"My dear husband—Believe me, believe me, my dear husband, bad and all as I have been, I am grateful. I do not ask you to forgive me. That my sin is beyond pardon I well know. All the love God put in a man's heart could not live through such a wrong.

Andrews says he has $5 000 a year salary and is paying her $25 a week and allows her to live in his cottage at Long Branch.

Her answer to his suit charges him with infidelity with Jennie H. Wilson, "Big Em" "Fat May," "Dolly Varden" Post, Emma Oglesbie and others.

Immediately after the beginning of the suit Mrs. Andrews was found dead in her cottage at Long Branch. Dr. Pemberton certified that her death was due to poisoning. It is believed that she committed suicide, but her friends claim that it was an accident,

SISTER'S SHOTGUN.

Charming Lela Bennett Exhibits Her Shackled Ankles.

FLOOR. THE CHAINED

Galena, in Delaware county, Ohio, has been in an uproar over a highly sensational affair. It appears that Miss Lela Bennett, a pretty sixteen-year-old girl, was very much in love with Samuel Boggs, a respectable young man. Lela's sister, Edna, and her brother, A. E. Bennett, were opposed to the courtship of the young people and chained Lela to the floor of her room in order to prevent her from eloping with

Samuel learned of the outrage upon his sweetheart, and accompanied by his brother Edward and Quincy Van Tassell, another young man of the village, went to the Bennett homestead to rescue the girl. When on the morning of Oct. 5 they reached the house they were confronted by the elder sister, Miss Edna, who was armed with a shotgun. The sister declared that if the young men stepped into the yard she would

"Hold on, Edna," said Van Tassell, "I want to reason with you. "I'll reason with you," replied the girl. "I'll shoot

Then Miss Bennett discharged the gun. The shot struck Van Tassell in the left shoulder. The young men, however, did not go back. They disarmed Miss Bennett and entered the house. They found Lela chained to the floor in her room. The shackles etcircled her aukles, and the rescuers were compelled to break the chains with an axe. Then the young girl was passed out of a window and carried down a ladder with the shackles still dangling from her ankles. She was immediately taken to Van Tassell's home, where she was cared for. On the following evening she was driven about the streets of Galena in a carriage with her feet hanging out. This was for the purp having the public view her chained limbs in order that abundance of evidence might be obtained by the

The Boggs brothers and Van Tassell were arrested late at night at the latter's home. The charge against them is malicious destruction of property, the Bennett residence having been damaged in the attack, but it will be changed to that of abduction. Their case was continued. Miss Edna Bennett was arrested on the charge of shooting with intent to kill Quincy Van Tassell. She was taken before 'Squire McCamment, at Galena, and was bound over to Court in the sum of $200.

A. E. Bennett also is to be arrested as an accessory before the crime, as it is claimed he loaded the shotgun and told his sister not to hesitate to use it. Van Tassell is in a fair way to recover from his wounds. The next new feature of the case will be an attempt by the Bennetts to have Miss Lela sent to the Girls' Industrial School, as she is not yet 17 years old. This action is to be taken in retaliation for her refusal to

A WIFE'S ESCAPADE. (SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.)

For several months Surgeon Samuel H. Dickson of the navy, now on duty in Washington, D. C., has suspected that his wife was unduly intimate with a wealthy young Englishman named Carter, and he hired detectives and had his wife watched day and night. The other evening the detectives informed Dickson that his wife and Carter were registered at the National Hotel, Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Dickson went to his friends, Lieutenant Commander Cowden of the ordnance department, and Dick Wakeman, a well known man about town and a member of the Metropolitan Club, and asked them to accompany him.

The party reached the hotel and found Carter and Mrs. Dickson dining. They waited until the repast that they were enjoying was finished, and the couple had retired to their rooms in the hotel. Then Dickson and his friends broke in upon the startled couple, and a lively time ensued.

The injured husband slapped Carter's face and called him very hard names; but his wife, who was the coolest of the party, asked him if he intended to make trouble and bring disgrace upon all concerned. "I don't care whether I do or not," said Dickson. During the personal discussion Commander Cowden and Wakeman left the room. Mrs. Dickson is a handsome blonde of medium height, but trimly built. She has always figured largely in fashionable circles here, her skill as a horsewoman making her exceedingly popular among the hunting set. Dickson was appointed from Philadel-

This lady objected to an undressing act and a general fight ensued, which ended on the sidewalk by Buckner knocking one of the invading females down. The women escaped, but their dusky admirer

A PURSE OF $7,500 OFFERED.

The Coney Island Athletic Club, with their usual encorprise, have decided to give a purse of $7,500 for Peter Maher, the champion of Ireland, and Joe Goddard, who now claims to be the champion of the world, to fight for during the first week in De-

Shortly after Peter Maher arrived from Ireland, on his second trip to this country, he signified his willingness to meet Goddard, who had journeyed from Australia to fight any man in the world. Dave Holland, a well-known sporting man and member of the Manhattan Athletic Club of New York, decided to back Maher against Goddard, and Holland issued a challenge on behalf of Ireland's champion in the POLICE GAZETEE. The Coney Island Athletic Club, in the meantime, offered to put up a purse of $5,000 for Goddard and Maher. Maher being eager to fight, and also anxious to increase his bank account, at once decided to accept the offer made by the club. Goddard, who has fought dozens of fistic battles with Peter Jackson, Frank P. Slavin, Jos Choynski and other famous fistic heroes, and who had challenged John L. Sullivan when the latter was in Australia and the winner of the last great championship contest, refused to accept the Coney Island Athletic Club's offer, because he had an idea that they should offer at least a $10,000 purse.

In the meantime a rival syndicate at E: Dorado loomed up and offered a purse of $7,500, giving a guarantee that the purse would be deposited with the POLICK GAZETTE. For nearly a week the match hung fire, and finally the Coney Island Athletic Club decided to give $7,500 and Dave Holland, Maher's backer, and Billy Madden, the manager and backer of Goddard, were notified to meet at Warren Lewis's Albambra, in Eighth avenue, near Twenty-eighth street, on Oct. 18, to complete arrangements for the contest. The Coney Island Athletic Club representatives were on hand and the match was arranged.

It was decided that the contest should be governed by "Police Gazette" rules, and take place the first week in December. The winner will receive $6,500 and the loser $1,000. agreement were drawn up and signed and the final arrangements made later.

The Coney Island Athletic Club should be congratulated upon booking the Australian and Irish champions to fight under their auspices, and there is not the least doubt but the affair will attract thousands of spectators from all parts of the country, and well repay the enterprise and energy displayed by the wide awake members of the greatest boxing promoting organization of the East.

JIM CORBETT TALKS.

Prior to Jim Corbett meeting John L. Suilivan at New Orleans, Corbett, in an interview, said: 'I heard one the other day that I think sounds enough like him to be true. It was that Sullivan said, 'I am only training hard to oblige my friends. I don't have to do it, for Corbett is so scared of me that he will fret him-self half to death before the fight takes place.' Now, I don't want to be egotistic, or to make the slightest brag, but if my match with Sullivan caused me the slightest worry. I would throw it up in five minutes. I will go further, and say that if I had any doubt in my mind of my ability to defeat Sullivan I never would have permitted my friends to make it. I will go further, and say what I have never said before, and that is, that if John L. Sulivan can take on the handicap of my superior height, reach, skill, youth and quickness and defeat me, I will say that he is the fistic marvel of the world. Of course I will admit that the chapter of accidents and the fortune of war may have a good deal to do with the result; that I may get an un coked for thump which may send me out; but it's a poor rule that won't work both ways, and it may be Sullivan who will get the unlucky thump. They say that he thinks that I can't hit hard. He'll know more about my hitting powers after we have been in the ring a little while than he does now. If I am not very unfortunate I think I'll hit bim often enenough to make it very uncomfortable for him, at all events,

WINDLE BEATS ALL RECORDS.

At Springfield, Mass., on Oct. 7, Nancy Hanks and all her fleet-footed tribe were outdone by Wm. W. Windle, of Boston Mass., who turned the Hampden Park track on a bicycle in 2:02 3 5, lowering the world's bicycle record for the mile and the Queen of the Turf's record by 1 2-5 seconds. Zimmerman had held the record for the mile, his time being 2:06 4-5, and Windle only recently shoved down this mark to 2:04 and a fraction Windle, from a flying start, whittled down his own record to

Clad in his customary neat-fitting toggery he rode slowly up the track to the stand and was lustily choosed by the few spec-tators present. He was determined to beat Nancy Hanks' best effort of 2:04. A strong head wind somewhat handlcapped him. There were two triplets on the track and a single, and these were used as pacemakers. W. F. Murphy, Harry Wheeler and W. S. Campbell on one of the triplets carried Windie the first half-mile at a lively gait, and the three watches clicked 50 4-5

The second triplet on the last half was ridden by Charles Dorn-Cage, Riverside Smith and H. B. Arnold, with Nelson to help out on the homestretch. Windle made a brilliant spurt at the fluish, crossing the tape only a foot behind the triplet.

COCK FIGHTERS, ATTENTION!

Matt Allen, the trainer of Frank Ehret's racing stable, has posted $1,000 with the following challenge

NEW YORK, Oct. 13, 1892. Being informed that several game fowl breeders are eager to arrange a cocking main now the season has commenced, I wish to state that I will arrange a main against any of the big breeders and owners of game fowl in the United States upon the fol-lowing conditions: Each side to show 21 cocks at weights ranging from 4 pounds 8 ounces to 6 pounds 8 ounces, according to New York rules, for $5,000 or $10,000 the main, and $250 a side each battle. The main to be fought at any place that is mutually agreed upon at a reasonable time from signing articles. To show the many breeders that this offer is not an "Eastern bluff." I have deposited $1,000 with W. E. Harding. The many turfmen and Southern and Western gentlemen who own game fowl, and like to see them battle, will oblige me if they will forward a reply to this offer.

P. S.-I will also arrange a shake bag, to take place the same time as the main, or before it, for $1,000 a side. M. A.

Matt Allen means business, and his deposit proves it. If the Washington, Virginia and California breeders are eager to ratify a main they will have no trouble, as Matt Allen has plenty of games and $25,000 behind "his fowls."

AN INTERVIEW WITH PARSON DAVIES.

Charles E. Davies is with Joe Choynski at the Navesink Highlands. He intends to remain with the Californian until the latter finishes his training for the contest of Oct. 31. In the opinion of the astute pugilistic manager this contest will be one of the most interesting that has ever taken place, at least in this vicinity.

'Godfrey is a very glever fellow," said the parson, "and he can hit pretty hard. Still he will find in Joe a man who is cer tainly clever and whose hitting powers are wonderful, and if the Coney Island Athletic Club is not crowded to the doors on the of the fight, I shall be very much mistaken. I expec-Peter Jackson over on the 26th of this month.

"Does Jackson intend to challenge Corbett?" was asked.
"Jackson never challenges anybody," was Davies reply. While he will ask for a match with the present champion. I do not think that he will try to force Corbett through the newspapers. Peter is one of the fairest men I ever knew in my life. Ho believes in giving everybody a chance, and while Corbett really owes him a return match. I don't think that Peter will chase after it if he finds that the champion does not care to meet him in the ring."

YALE COLLEGIANS AT THE OAR.

On Lake Whitney, at New Haven, on Oct. 15, Yale College held their fall regatta. The first event of the day was the annual mile and a half straightaway between the academic and acientific freshmen. The latter got a good start, but were headed before they had gone a hundred yards. Then they went to pleces and the academic oarsmen pulled handly away. After half the distance had been covered the scientific men got into better form, but crooked steering ran the oars of the starboard men aground a few lengths from the finish, and before the crew could get away again their opponents had cressed the line. The time of the winners was 7 minutes 18 seconds. They led about six lengths at the finish. The winners rowed as follows: Acade Freshmen-Bow, G. L. Gray, 137 pounds; No 2. C. V. Hopkins 145 pounds; No. 3, W. P. Paret, 150 pounds; No. 4, J. A. Scudder 16 pounds; No. 5, W. H. Cross, 180 pounds; No. 6, A. Brown, 174 pounds; No. 7, C. W. Penrose, 163 pounds; stroke, F. H.

Biliard, 155 pounds, and coxawain, H. G. Holcomb, 105 pounds. Next came the single scuiling race, a mile straightaway, for the $500 Ford cup. There were five entries, but C. G Morris and P. S. Evans, both of New Haven, took the lead and rowed a close race till the last quarter, when Morris spurted and won by three lengths. The time was 8 minu es 46 seconds, the best, with one exception, ever made over the course.

BURNABY WINS THE CAESAREWITCH.

The Casarewitch, the great handicap of the fall, was decided t Nowmarket, London, England, on Oct 12 It resulted in a great coup, as Burnaby, the winner, was so heavily supported by his owner that from 50 to 1 he fell to 7 to 1 within Brandy, who had been greatly fancied throughout the betting, showed the way until a quarter of a mile from home, when Burnaby headed her, and drawing right away won very handily by two lengths. Insurance passed Brandy a furlong from home, and captured second place. The summary:

THE DOUBLE-SCULL CHAMPIONSIHP.

ORILLIA, Ont., Oct. 15, 1892 -The double-scull race on Lake Couchiching between George Hosmer and J. G. Gaudaur and Edward Hanlan and William O'Connor for a stake of $2,500 and the double-sculi championship of the world was rowed to-day. Hosmer and Gaudaur won. They crossed the line in 18 minutes 31 seconds, about seven lengths ahoad. The time is fast, considering the wind and water, and had the elements been favorable there is no doubt the record would have been broken Hanlan and O'Connor have no excuse to offer for defeat. mer has issued a challenge to Rogers, of Worcester, for a three-mile race for $500 a side. There is a good deal of speculation as to whether O'Connor and Gaudaur will be matched.

GREGGANS AND COSTELLO MATCHED.

The Matchmaking Committee of the Coney Island Athletic Club are making matters hum just at present. This body assembled and the result of the conference is a match between Aleck Greggans, the clever California middle-weight, and Buffalo Costello, a protege of Jim Corbett. At no time was the fleet golding strung out, and it is an open question whether Hai Pointer or Flying Jib have any license to beat him.

In the second bout the men wrestled I hour and 25 minutes, when darkness came on, and the referee, Abel Pilling, declared the contest a draw.

Billy Madden has claimed the championship of the world for his protege, Joe Goddard, owing to Jim Corbett refusing to fight. Madden recently posted $1,000 and Goddard chal-lenged Corbett to fight for $5,000 a side and the champlonship of the world. He left the challenge open for 30 days. The time has expired and Goddard now claims the championship of the world, and Madden agrees to match him for $5,000 against any man in the world, the contest to take place in the club offering the largest purse.

The sum of $500 has been deposited as a forfeit in the office of the Dispatch by Thomas McCaffrey, a brother of Dominick McCaffrey, in response to the assertion of James J. Corbett that be could knock out Dominick McCaffrey in four rounds. McCaffrey says the forfeit has been deposited for a bet of $5,000, and that the contest can take place at the Manhattan Athletic Club, Coney Island or in Madison Square Garden, six weeks after signing articles.

Bobby Burns, the vanquisher of Cal McCarthy, met Walter Ettinger, colored, familiarly known as the "Entucky Bosebud," in a four-round contest at Billy Leedom's academy, Eighth and Vine streets, Philadelphia, Pa., on Oct. 8. Frank C. Ives will sail for England. He has arranged a match with Roberts for the world's championship at the English game. The match is for $2,500 a side and will be 12,000 points up. The game, which will continue one week, 1,000 points each afternoon and evening, will be played in London in January. A forfeit of $1,250 has been posted. Ives has ordered a table from England, and expects to begin practice as soon as it reaches Chicago. "I think," said Ives recently, "that I can master the game in a few weeks and that I will be able to defeat the Englishman at his own game.'

Richard Thompson of 186 Thirteenth avenue, New ark, called at the POLICE GAZETTE office Oct. 15 and accepted James E. Douglas' ctallenge to match his dogs, Firensi and Peoping Tom, against any two dogs in America to run 200 yards. Thompson has two dogs which he claims can out-run any in the ountry, and will cover Douglas' deposit and post entire stakes at once when agreement is made. Saturday. Oct. 22, at twelve o'clock, noon, in the POLICE GAZETTE office, is the time and place agreeable to Thompson, and he will be on hand to meet Douglas and sign articles.

It has been recently stated that Mike Bowerman had wired Budd Doble that he would trot Mequette against Nancy Hanks at the Lexington meeting, and that Doble had declined. This statement is unfair to Dobie. The full facts of the case are as follows: Bowerman did make the offer, and named the sum the Lexington Association was willing to offer. and Doble replied: "Will not trot Nancy Hanks against any horse for anything like the amount you name, but will trot Martha Wilkes with you for that amount, winner to take all or two-thirds." This was a fair proposition, and puts a totally different complexion on the affair.

The pacing sensation of the hour on the Pacific slope is the four-year-old gelding W. Wood, who took a record of 2;11½ in the third heat of a race at Stockton, a short time since. Like a majority of the pacing stars of the season, he is anything but pacing bred, being by the trotter Steinway. 3, 2.25%, out of Ramona, by the trotter Auteeo, 2:16%; second dam by : he trotter Capt. Webster, $:30%. He is the first foal of his dam, a fine black mare, now but eight years old, who was herself a fast trotter, but of such a nervous and excitable tempera-ment that she was early sent to the stud. W. Wood is now, with the exception of Robert J., 2:09%, the fastest four-year-old pac ing geiding.

C. J. Hamlin, of Buffalo, N. Y., has one of the best stables of trotters on the turf. In the stable are such notable performers as Belle Hamilin and Globe, which hold the world's champion double team record, 2:12; Hal Pointer, 2:05% the champion pacer; Nightingale, winner of the Hartford $10,000 of two years ago; Midnight Chimes, a three-year-old filip, with a race record of 2:16%; Chimes Girl, another three-year-old Chimes which has a slower mark, but is really faster than Midnight; and Heir-at-Law, 2:20%, the four-year-old brother to Prince Regent, 3:16%. All of the above appear in races or specials dur-ing the meeting. Mr. Hamlin has written on that he will surely beat the double team record and that Hal Pointer can easily reduce his record of 2:05%. Mr. Hamlin has a wonderful string of horses, probably the best owned by any man in the world.

At the Columbia College games, held in New York, on Oct 15, two very creditable performances enthused the spectators. They were both done by that slim-legged young hurdler F. C. Puffer, whom the Manhattan A. C. enthusiasts consider a marvel. On such a well-seasoned track as that at Berkeley Oval Puffer would doubtless have created a new record over the sticks at 120 yards. At that distance, plus ten yards, which he was penalized, he spread-engled his field and reached the tape in 16 3 5 seconds. The record is 15% seconds. Puffer's other noteworthy performance was in the 220-yard hurdle. Puffer seemed to scoot over the jumps with the easy grace and swiftness of a sea gull, and before the first hundred yards were covered he had taken the lead and was rapidly leaving the others behind. His time was 25 seconds. De Salazar, who fin ished third to Schwegier, had twelve yards' start of the scratch

Charley Johnston, backer of John L. Sullivan. writes to the POLICE GAZETTE that he is not at all pleased at the statements lusinuating foul play at the recent championship battle which the big fellow is said to have made. "I am surthe defeat than what he said in New Orleans that night. He was defeated as fairly as any man ever was, and those stories of drugging sand all that sort of thing are enough to make an intelligent man tired. As a matter of fact Sullivan was in better ondition to f ;ht that night in the Olympic Club than ever be fore in his life. The reason he met defeat was because he found better man than himself in front of him. I can hardly believe that John would be foolish enough to say that he was drugged. If Sullivan was not fit how could he have fought nearly an hour "What do you think of his intention to take another crack at Corbett. Would you back him?" "I do not care to say whether I would back him or not," Johnston continued, "but I will say that he is not displaying good judgment in talking of another match. The quicker he abandons that idea the better. People who did not see the fight have been filling John's head with strange notions. If he was drugged in New Orleans I wonder what was the matter in France."

There is little prospect of a match between Tommy White, of Chicago, and Paddy McBride, of Philadelphia, ing to White refusing to meet McBride and his backer in New York to arrange a match. McBride issued a challenge and posted $250 with a responsible man to fight Johnny Griffen or any 122-pound man in America, for $1,000. Griffen failed to accept McBride's challenge, but Tommy White, of Chicago, did, but failed to cover McBilde's money. Finally, the backer of McBride withdrew his $250 that he had put up, and Mc-Bride decided to join a company at $100 per week. In the meantime White, it was reported, had posted $100 in Chicago to fight McBride. John J. Quinn at once wired the POLICE GAZETTE that he would meet White and his backers in New York to arrange a match on Oct. 17, and articles signed by McBride could be sent on to White immediately and he would sign them. Mc-Bride called at the POLICE GAZETTE office later and he was surprised when he read White's ultimatum. McBride says: "He wants to fight for a purse and no money. He says nothing can be accomplished by coming to New York. He can sign articles to fight for $1,000 or $2,500 a side. That should pay him for the trip and several clubs will offer purses. White is biuffing and I shall pay no more attention to him." On Oct. 18 McBride posted $100 and agreed to meet White any day he would come on. This fact was telegraphed to Chicago, and the following reply was received: "White leaves for California on Oct. 22. He will not go to New York, as nothing can be accomplished. No purse

Jim Corbett Must Defend His Title in the Ring.

RULES GOVERNING PUGILISM.

It appears that Jim Corbett has decided not to fight again for the championship of the world until the expiration of one year from Sept. 7, 1892. Judging by Corbett's unti matum, he must believe that there are no rules governing the title he has won, and which he is compelled to defend against

In my opinion Corbett must defend his title, and, if he falls to do so, then the boxer who puts up a deposit and challenges him to battle succeeds him. John L Sullivan when he was champion, inbored under the impression that he could avoid fighting and still hold the championship. Sullivan would not be influenced to believe anything else until Jake Kilrath challenged bim in 1888, and Kirain's challenge was backed up with $1,000 forfeit and the usual thirty days was allowed for its acceptance. Sullivan did not accept the challenge and Kilrain claimed the title. The sporting press in England and America declared Kilrain champion.

It has always been the rule that a champion must defend his title against all challenges that are legitimate. In 1851 Harry Broome beat Bill Perry, the Tipton Slasher, for the championship of England. The Tipton Slasher challenged Broome to fight again for the title. Broome falled to meet him and the Tipton Slasher became champion. At the time Tom Sayers was champion of England in 1860 he fought John Carmel Heenan, the champion of America, for 2300 and the cham-pionship of the world. The battle was fought on April 17, 1860. and ended in a draw. Sayers then retired from the ring and the championship emblem was left open for any one to claim. Sam Hurst, the "Staly Bridge Infant," who was, by the way, in this country in 1870 the guest of Arthur Chambers, and Tom Pad-dock fought for the championship, they being the first claimants. Hurst won and became champion of England. Jem Mace then challenged Hurst, and while he did not want to meet Mace he was notified that he would have to fight or surrender the title. Hurst finally accepted and Mace defeated him in 8 rounds or

Mace's victory made him champion of England, and in a speech he announced he would fight any man in the world, black or white, who challenged him. Tom King, of Stepney, London, England, and not Tom King, of New Orleans, La., challenged Mace to fight for $200 a side and the championship. Mace, like the present champion of the world, did not want to fight until he had filled several important engagements, but he was notified that King would be declared champion if he did not was noticed that king would be declared champion it he did not accept the challenge. Mace, not desiring to lose the title by default, agreed to fight King. They met on Jan. 28, 1862. The battle was a desperate one. Forty-nine rounds were fought with bare knuckies, according to London prize ring rules, when Mace was halled the victor. King at once challenged Mace to fight again but the latter did not care to fight for one year. Bell's Life, the donors of the champion belt, decided Mace must again meet King within six months, and the former, in order to keep the belt and the championship accepted King's challenge. and match was made upon the same terms as the first, and King and Mace met on Nov. 26, 1862, nine months after first battle. King won in 21 rounds, lasting 38 minutes. King then became champion of England. Mace then challenged him to once more battle for the championship. King refused to fight and Bell's Life declared that he forfelted the title

I could continue quoting precedents of this kind, but the above historical prize ring events go to prove what I have said in reference to Jim Corbett, the new champion, and the path he must follow if he desires to hold the title.

It is to avoid such a contingency that the following rule was made: "The holder of the championship must contend for the title within six months, but not more than twice within one year. All contests must be fought within six months from the date of the challenge, and if the challenger's proposal to fight is ignored he shall be entitled to the championship, and will be in duty bound to defend it according to the rules governing the championship."

Now, in the face of these facts, I do not see how Jim Corbett can refuse to fight and hold his title. He has been challenged by Charley Mitchell, the boxing champion of England, and it is said that the latter posted 2500 forfelt. This fact I cannot vouch for. On the other hand, Jos Goddard has posted a forfeit and issued a challenge to fight Corbett for $5,000 a side and the largest purse offered, and Corbett has refused to meet the Anstralian. Now, it is not in my province to claim superiority for Corbett or for Goddard. It will be ample time to cuss their chances of victory when a match is arranged. It is merely my right to settle a disputed question, which is whether Jim Corbett, being the recognised champion of the world, must accept all bona fide challenges or forfeit all claim to the chainhip. I have not rushed into the furnace while the door is.

I have carefully hunted up similar cases and closely perused the rules, and come to the conclusion that Corbett m meet his challengers, arrange a match to fight in six months, or lose all claim to the title he holds.

Since George Godfrey, the Black Slasher, of Boston, Mass., and Joe Choynski, the California Thunderbolt have been matched to meet in the Coney Island Athletic Club on Oct. 31, I have heard many claim that Choynski would win sure on the ground that Godfrey is old and stale. It is true Godfrey has been battling within the roped arena for quite a number of years, and besides his numerons glove contests in the eighties, has fought many a stubborn, up-hill battle both with champions ss. His great battle with Peter Jackson victory over Jack Ashton, his victory over Ed Smith of Denver. his stubborn battle with Jake Kilrain and his victory over Joe Lannon, go to show that the Black Slasher has been since 1883 a regular prize ring hero. It must be thoroughly understood ot the battles that use up the adipose pugilist, but the trying ordeal of training. It is strange, but nevertheless true, that one half of the champion puglists would sooner fight three times than go through the regular training routine once. There are very few first-class fighters who will train strictly to the letter. The majority place too much confidence in their known ability, and believe they can win at all hazards. Lack of condition cost Edward Hanian the single-sculi championship of the world. It cost John L. Sullivan the prize ring championship. Godfrey has trained a score of times and scientiously, going through his daily work with regular clock-like precision during the five or six weeks prior to counter. No doubt he has suffered from this continued physical strain, and possibly it may tell against him in his coming battle with Choynski.

Godfrey was born at Prince Edward's Island on March 20, 1852, and he is not yet furty years of age, so he cannot be considered too old to fight. Jem Mace, when he fought Tom Allen at Kenner, La., May 10, 1870, was 41 years old, and since that time he jought George Belcher in Australia, and Charley Mitchell in Glasgow, Seotland. He won from Alien and Belcher, but wouth told in his contest with Mitchell Joe Goss was 44 years of age when he fought Paddy Ryan for $2,000 and the championship at Collier's Station, West Va., on June 1, 1880. He fought Ryan 87 rounds, according to London prize ring rules, and although Ryan won the championship of America, there was not much credit given to Ryan for ht. victory, and it is be lieved that if Goss had trained he would have won.

I think that if Mace could fight as he did in his

at the age of forty-one, met Tom Allen, the latter was chamion of America. There was no man in America who disputed Allen's claim to the title until Mace defeated him, which made Mace's vistory the more important. Age is not going to defeat Sodfrey in the coming contest, which I think will be a desperate one. Now, mark what I say, if Godfrey is to be beaten it will be by tremendous blows that will give him a reverse. Godfrey is one of the cleverest boxers in America. He was always classed as a scientific boxer. His courage was always question he fought Peter Jackson, and he lasted longer in front of the black champion than either Jim Smith, England's champion or Frank P. Siavin. Godfrey's protracted struggle with Jake Kilrain proved his courage beyond all question, for to use the vernacular he stood the guff until he was knocked out.

Joe Choynski is said to be a wonderful fighter. He may be, but he was defeated by Corbett and twice knocked out by Jee Goddard. Speculators would not back Choynski on what he has done but what he may do, for his record does not class with Godfrey's victories and defeats. There is one thing certain, Choynski will bit Godfrey harder than ever he was hit in his life, and if he can stand the same dose Choynski gave Goddard when he opened a big gash on the Australian cham-pion's chin and left him marked for life, he will be a wonderful game man.

It looks as if there will be an international yacht race during 1893. A preliminary challenge was received at the New York Yacht Ciub from Lord Dunraven, who is anxious to carry to England the America's cup. The letter of Lord Dunraven was not given out for publication, but I am informed that a formal challenge will be sent by the Royal Yacht Squadron, of which the Earl of Dunraven is a member, if the condi-tions of what is known throughout the domain of yachting as the new deed of gift are sufficiently modified to suit British ideas. Lord Dunraven lays it down as a size que nos of his for-mal challenge that he will accept the same terms offered him on the occasion of his previous challenge, previded that if he wins the same conditions shall govern all future races for the cup. On receipt of Lord Dunraven's letter, Secretary Oddie communicated with Commodore Gerry, and the following cable-gram was sent to Lord Dunraven: "Your letter received, and will be considered at a special meeting of the club, to be held on

The whole question will probably be referred to a committee of the club. There is sure to be the biggest fight in the history of the organization. The new deed of gift was drawn up by Secretary John H. Bird in 1887. It met with the approval tore Gerry, Gen. Paine, ex-Commodore J. D. Smith, and all the influential members of the club, who insisted that its terms were fair and sportsmanlike. Of late a revulsion of feeling has set in. The Field, edited by Dixon Kemp, has adduced certain arguments that have appeared cogent to many members of the New York Yacht Club. There is a powerful faction striving to subvert Commodore Gerry and the more conservative members of the club who are pledged to the deed of gift in question. Their project is also to elect in Commodors Gerry's place Vice-Commodoro E. D. Morgan. If this faction is victorious, as it probably will be, Lord Dunraven may challenge for the America's cup on his own terms. But he is not at all likely to come nearer winning it than did Sir Richard Sutton with the Genesta Lieut. Henn with the Galatea, or James Bell with the Thistic.

The chief points complained of in the deed of gift are that the challenger is compelled to give ten months' notice, to disclose the length on loadwater line, beam at loadwater line, extreme beam and draught of water, which dimensions shall not be exceeded. These clauses of the famous document hitherto been upheld with vigor by the New York Yacht Club as being fair and sportsmanlike. They have also been de-nounced as most unfair and unsportsmanlike by the leading yacht clubs of Great Britain. How the New York Yacht Club an with honor retreat from its old standpoint is an interesting problem. Lord Dunraven, however, was given the tip severa weeks ago by his friends in the New York Yacht Club that a challenge would be in order, and he hastened to send it along. It looks now as though his challenge would be accepted. Sev. eral New York yashtsmen are ready to give the Herreshoffs an order for a cup defender just as seen as the approximate dimensions of the challenging boat are received. Of course Lord Dunraven will build a new yacht. Such a slow coach as the Valkyrie, or craft of that class, is quite out of the question for an America's cup contest.

The pneumatic tire trotting sulky is creating a regular furor among trotting men. There can be no qu but what it was this character of a vehicle that enabled Hanks to break the mile trotting record at Washington Park a few weeks ago. Or, in other words, it is very doubtful that she could have trotted the mile better than a second or so slower had she been attached to the old fashion hard tire sulky. The speed of the pneumatic tire has long been known to bicycle riders, and shortly after its appearance in England riders of that style of machine were handicapped 100 yards in the mi The growth of the popularity of the tire was so rapid and its adoption by racing men so widespread that it soon had the rac-ing field to itself, as no rider, no matter how speedy, could push the hard tired wheel against a contestant in his own class on the new style mount with any hope of success

Since its introduction on the trotting track the new sulky has worked wonders equal almost to those accomplished by the air tire on the cycle racing path. The striking thing about the new sulky is the low wheels. In the old-style vehicle the driver sat between them. Now he sits above them. The twenty-eight to thirty-two i the same as a safety bicycle seen on the roads and tracks. It has ball-bearings wherever there is play for an axis. In the old sulky the wheel turned on a greased axis. Now in the hub of the wheel is a row of balls about the size of buckshot and of The axle is placed on these balls, which eliminate the old-time cone-bearing friction. The rim of the sulky is of wood and the spokes also, but many horsemen a applying to the bicycle dealers for regular bicycle wheels to be attached directly to the sulky. The average weight of a road from 35 to 45 pounds; of a racer about 20 pounds. A sulky with the pneumatic tire attachment weighs from 62% to

The tire, which is of rubber, is pumped up with air, the same as in a bievele. An inch and a quarter tire, or even larger, is left hollow and is pumped full of air by me of a small pump. The hole is then made air-tight by a valve and the tire will remain firm until the air leaks out through a puncture or faulty plugging. The sulky that did the best work on the grand circuit in the West recently had a wheel about 20 high. Practical persons consider that the low wheels de not give any advantage; rather that the ball-bearings and tires enabled the 28-inch sulky to win in spite of the low wheels. They say that the long-accepted theories concerning high wheels cannot be easily disproved, and that it will not be long before horsemen will want sulkies having wheels of the use height, but supplied with the frictionless bearings and pneumatic tire. The pneumatic tire is a great benefit to the driver as well as to the horse. The vibration in the old sulky was one of the drawbacks to increased lightness.

HALL AND FITZSIMMONS.

The Olympic Club of New Orleans, La., has succeeded in geting the signature of Bob Fitzsimmons to articles of agreement for a fight with Jim Hall at catch weights, a thing which the middle-weight champion has heretolore refused to do, contend-ing that as he had won the title at the regulation limit he should only be called on to defend it at the same weight. He was go outside of the class and meet heavier men, as he had done, and that therefore his own action in meeting Peter Maher had sted as a precedent and that Hall had a right to ask for catch weights. Fitzsimmons at last saw the force of the argument nd signed the articles. They stipulate that the fight shall take place on some day early in February, so as not to conflict with the carnival; that the purse shall be $15,000; $1,000 to the loser, and that the weight shall be subject to the will of the contestants. The club reserves the right to select the referes

Hall was cabled the substance of the agreement, and was urged to make prompt answer. President Noel is of the opinion that he cannot refuse to meet the champion, as everything has been arranged just as he has wanted it done. Should Hall accept the offer, Pizsimmons whi quit the stage and go into training. He will probably do his work in the South, as he has heretofore.

BE YOUR OWN PHYSICIAN!

Many men, from the effects of youthful imprudence, have brought about a state of weakness that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease, and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever being suspected, they are doctored for everything but the right one. Notwithstanding the many valuable remedies that medical science has produced for the relief of this class of patients, none of the ordinary modes of treatment effect a cure. During our extensive college and hospital practice we have experimented with and discovered now and concentrated remedies. The accompanying prescription is offered as certa in a net speedy cure, as hundreds of cases in our practice have been restored to perfect health by its use after all other remedies failed. Perfectly pure ingredients must be used in the preparation of this prescription.

Make 60 pills. Take one pill at 3. p. m., and another on going to bed. In some cases it will be necessary for the patient to take two pills at bedtime, making the number three a day. This rebudy is adapted to every condition of nervous debility and weakness in either sex, and especially in those cases resulting from imprudence. The recuperative powers of this restorative are truly astonishing, and its use continued for a short time changes the languid, debilitated, nerveless condition to one of renewed life and vigor.

As we are constantly in receipt of letters of inquiry relative to this remedy, we would say to those who would prefer to obtain it from us, by remitting $1, a securely scaled package containing $0$ pills, carefully compounded, will be sent by return mail from our private laboratory, or we will furnish 6 pa
